MY FAVOURITE SPORTSMAN

My favourite sportsman is Pele. He is one of the famous sportsmen in the world. Having played 21 years he had 1363 matches and kicked at 1281 goals. Pele won three world championships. His real name is Adson Arustis du Nasimentu. When he appeared at the stadium everyone knew that he would win.

Nowadays he doesn't play; he is the minister of sport of Brazil. Pele opened sport clubs for poor children. He wrote a book "I am Pele" and many illiterate people began to study because they wanted to read the book of their favourite sportsman.

Pele was recognized the best sportsman of the 20th century by the Olympic Committee.

FOOTBALL

Everyone is sure that football was originated in England. But Greeks say that they have at least four kinds of ball for similar games. In 2650 B.C. there was a game like football in Japan. But the ball wasn't passed on the ground. Some people say that football was brought to England from Rome. But the mother of modern football is really England; and it has its birthday on the 26th of October, 1863 when all the rules were discussed. Nobody could touch the ball, but the goalkeeper after 1871.

BASKETBALL

There are several versions of basketball's origin. According to the most known, basketball was introduced by American college teacher James Naithsmith. It is said to happen unexpectedly. His students (it was a sport training college) needed different and interesting exercises. So once they saw the following situation: their teacher placed fruit basket on the walls at the opposite ends of the room and threw a ball used for football into the basket. When he managed to hit it, he took out the ball and went on.

James Naithsmith organized a nine-men team each of which tried to throw the ball into the other team's basket and keep that team from throwing the ball into their basket.

So in 1891 basketball appeared in Springfield College. The name was given to the game by one of Naithsmith's friends.

Years passed, many rules changed but the game remained. And in 1936 basketball teams began to take part in the Olympic Games.

VOLLEY-BALL

Volley-ball was invented by William Morgan, a teacher of college as well. It happened in 1895. Naithsmith had baskets at hand, and Morgan took a net used for tennis, placed it two metres high above the playground and asked his students to throw the ball into the other part of the playground behind the net. The game wasn't popular. Only at the beginning of the 20th century European countries admitted volley-ball.

In 1907 the first competition was held in Czechoslovakia. Beginning from 1964 volley-ball became Olympic kind of sport.

TENNIS

It appeared in Paris. First balls were returned by palm, but in the middle of the 15th century rackets were made. In 1875 Englishmen worked out rules. Firstly it was called lawn tennis because it was played on lawns. Beginning from 1877 in London suburb-Wimbledon – Wimbledon championship takes place. They are not official but they are very popular. Tennis took part in the Olympic Games but after 1924 it stopped its history in Olympiad. It became a member of the Olympic family again only in 1980-s.

TABLE TENNIS

We know the history of lawn tennis, but we can play it only when the weather is fine. So the real fans decided to change everything, they made "a small version" of lawn tennis: the rackets became smaller, so did the balls. Tables appeared instead of lawns.

The history of ping-pong began at the end of the 19th century in England. The first official competitions were in England in 1900.

HOCKEY

In 1866 soldiers of England were in Canada. They saw a beautiful lake and decided to play a game like hockey. But instead of puck they used an empty can.

In 1875 Canadian students showed several matches. They hadn't a can already. They took half a rubber ball. But only in 1879 the first rules were formulated.
